About Biocept

Biocept is a molecular diagnostics company with commercialized assays for patients with solid tumors. Our experts have spent years working to improve the way physicians use cerebrospinal fluid for cancers that have spread to the central nervous system. Biocept has developed a unique, patented methodology to transport, isolate, and analyze cancer-derived materials from liquid specimens. As such, Biocept is a leading commercial provider of cerebrospinal fluid testing, enabling clinicians to rapidly detect cancerous involvement as well as identify and monitor therapeutic biomarkers.
